

Early Journal Content on JSTOR, Free to Anyone in the World

This article is one of nearly 500,000 scholarly works digitized and made freely available to everyone in the world by JSTOR.

Known as the Early Journal Content, this set of works include research articles, news, letters, and other writings published in more than 200 of the oldest leading academic journals. The works date from the mid-seventeenth to the early twentieth centuries.

We encourage people to read and share the Early Journal Content openly and to tell others that this resource exists. People may post this content online or redistribute in any way for non-commercial purposes.

Read more about Early Journal Content at <http://about.jstor.org/participate-jstor/individuals/early-journal-content>.

JSTOR is a digital library of academic journals, books, and primary source objects. JSTOR helps people discover, use, and build upon a wide range of content through a powerful research and teaching platform, and preserves this content for future generations. JSTOR is part of ITHAKA, a not-for-profit organization that also includes Ithaka S+R and Portico. For more information about JSTOR, please contact support@jstor.org.

Announcement

- ¶ The Massachusetts Historical Society has again favored this Quarterly by granting permission to reprint from its Proceedings the valuable article on "Boston Traders in Hawaiian Islands, 1789-1823." The author of the article, Mr. Samuel Eliot Morison, has also consented to its republication here. It will be found that the article contributes to our knowledge of the furtrade in the Northwest as well as to early Hawaiian history.
- ¶ George W. Soliday, formerly of North Dakota, now of Seattle, was kind enough to secure for this issue the narrative of James Sweeney, prospector and frontiersman.
- ¶ Major Junius Thomas Turner, veteran of four wars, is no stranger to readers of this Quarterly. His interest in history continues notwithstanding his age of ninety-four years.
- ¶ Stanford University is to be congratulated on the good work being done by a Washingtonian. Professor Frank A. Golder, of the State College of Washington, is meeting with remarkable success in Europe collecting war history documents for the Hoover Collection in Stanford University.